LESSON PLAN

Dual Track Curriculum:
China's National Compulsory Curriculum with international-style English Learning

Early English Literacy | “Dot” | 40 minutes

Planning note. Designed for ages 5–7 and beginner English readers, using the supplied lesson transcript as the content source. The exact grade, textbook edition, and school-specific unit objectives were not provided. The alignment below therefore uses publicly described school priorities as context, not as a claim that this is an approved school lesson.

1. Curriculum alignment and evidence

Publicly described school priority	How this lesson responds
English immersion and varied language learning	Teacher models short English phrases; students listen, echo-read, answer orally, and use simple sentence frames.
Reading development and picture-book / leveled reading	Shared reading, picture-supported vocabulary, repeated reading, and literal comprehension questions.
Zero-start support, phonics and differentiated reading (described for Grade 1 in the school's 2026 primary Chinese-English course information)	Beginner-friendly oral rehearsal and visual cues; extension prompts for students ready to read independently.
Lexile / leveled reading resources (school describes reading resources and individual online accounts for Grades 3–6)	Treat levelled reading as a general school priority only; this lesson does not assign a Lexile level because the text level is not known.

Public reference: Haidian Foreign Language Academy, “Primary Chinese-English Curriculum Class (2026)” (official school group page): https://www.bjfles.com/class/jbxxzy/ . The page describes English-focused learning, reading, phonics and picture-book learning for zero-start Grade 1 learners, and differentiated reading. This is evidence of a published programme offering, not confirmation of the exact curriculum followed by every class or campus.

2. Lesson overview

- Age / proficiency: 5–7 years; beginner English readers (assumed from user brief).
- Duration: 40 minutes.
- Text: “Dot,” pages 113–118 according to the supplied transcript. Use the school's licensed copy; do not replace it with a newly invented version.
- Essential question: What do we learn about Dot from the words and pictures?
- Materials: student reading book, board or slides with picture cues (girl, red pot, food, hot, fan, cot/bed, sleeping), pencils, student handout, optional spaceship-style review slides.
- Grouping: whole class, partner rehearsal where appropriate, and individual responses.

3. Learning objectives and success criteria

By the end of the lesson, students will be able to:

- Identify Dot as a girl and point to or say the clue word “she.”
- Recall at least three story details: the pot is red; Dot eats a lot; Dot is hot and gets a fan; Dot rests on a cot and naps.
- Show understanding of the words pot, red, hot, fan, cot, and nap using a picture, gesture, or short spoken response.
- Complete or orally rehearse at least two simple sentence frames based on the story.

Student-friendly success criteria: “I can tell you about Dot. I can match words to pictures. I can answer a question about the story.”

4. Key language

Word / phrase	Child-friendly meaning	Suggested support
she	A word we use for a girl or woman.	Point to Dot in the book; contrast orally with he only if useful.

red pot	A red container used for cooking or holding something.	Show a clear pot picture and a red colour card.
a lot	Many / much.	Show two groups of objects: a few and a lot.
hot	Feeling very warm.	Fan face gently or point to a sun picture.
fan	A tool that moves air and helps someone feel cooler.	Picture or safe hand gesture; do not use an unsafe electrical demonstration.
cot	A small bed that can be moved.	Show a picture; explain that cot means a small bed in this story.
nap	A short sleep.	Model resting head on hands for a few seconds.

5. Teaching sequence (40 minutes)

Time	Phase	Teacher actions	Student actions	Evidence / checks
0–4	Arrival & routines	Briefly review 3–5 familiar class rules with visual cues. Keep language positive and concise: ready, listen, raise your hand, English practice, bathroom at break according to school policy.	Show the expected routine or say a rule with support.	Observe readiness; avoid spending the lesson on lengthy rule recitation.
4–7	Feelings warm-up	Model: “I am happy because ___.” Invite 2–3 students to answer; offer picture/word prompts such as family, food, friend. Accept a one-word response and recast it as a sentence.	Complete the sentence orally, point to a prompt, or repeat the teacher's model.	Listen for feeling word + reason; note who needs a sentence frame.
7–10	Set purpose & preview	Show the title “Dot.” Ask students to predict from the cover/pictures. State the sequence: read, practise, answer, play a short review game.	Say the title; make a simple prediction or point to a picture.	Can students identify the title and attend to the book?
10–20	Interactive shared reading	Read short sections from the supplied book. Pause after key events. Model fluent reading, then use echo reading or choral reading. Ask: Who is Dot? What colour is the pot? What does Dot do a lot? Why does she get a fan? Where does she rest?	Track the print/pictures, echo a line, read a familiar phrase, and answer using words or short sentences.	Use cold-call gently with think time; allow pointing or partner rehearsal before oral response.
20–25	Vocabulary with movement	Teach/review hot, fan, cot, nap using picture cues and gestures. Clarify that a cot is a small movable bed and a nap is a short sleep. Use a brief, controlled 3-second “nap” mime, then reset attention.	Match word to picture, mime the meaning, and say a word or sentence.	Ask students to identify cot vs. fan and nap vs. eat/run.
25–32	Guided comprehension	Use the worksheet questions or finger-choice routine. Explicitly model the signal: one finger = A, two = B, three = C. Ask students to show answers simultaneously, then ask selected students to explain or point to evidence.	Show one/two/three fingers, point to the matching picture, and explain with a word or frame.	Check all students' responses rather than only the first volunteer; reteach distractors briefly.
32–37	Sentence building & handout	Students complete matching, fill-in-the-blank, and one simple drawing response. Support with a word bank and read prompts aloud. Extension: students write a full sentence independently.	Complete the relevant handout tasks independently or with scaffolded support.	Review at least two items while circulating; note decoding, vocabulary and comprehension separately.
37–40	Exit ticket & close	Ask: “What is the story called?” “What colour is Dot’s pot?” “What does Dot do on her cot?” Finish with a 1-minute oral review game if time permits.	Answer orally, point, or choose a response card; return materials calmly.	Record each learner as secure / developing / needs support on the exit-ticket checklist.

6. Differentiation and access

- More support: pre-teach 3–4 words only; use large pictures, gestures, either/or questions, partner rehearsal, choral response, and sentence frames (“Dot is a ___.” “Her pot is ___.” “She gets a ___.”). Accept pointing before expecting speech.
- Core expectation: students identify key details and answer literal questions with a word, phrase, picture choice, or simple sentence.
- Extension: ask students to justify an answer with a picture/word clue, read one familiar sentence independently, or write “Dot is on her cot.”
- Language-sensitive practice: recast errors naturally instead of interrupting every response. For example, if a student says “She get fan,” respond “Yes, she gets a fan.”
- Behaviour and inclusion: use short directions, a visible timer, predictable turn-taking, and non-verbal response options. Avoid using public competition as the only assessment.

7. Assessment for learning

Skill	Secure	Developing	Needs support
Story detail	Correctly recalls 3+ details.	Recalls 1–2 details with cues.	Cannot yet recall a detail even with picture cues.
Vocabulary	Matches 5–6 target words to meanings/pictures.	Matches 3–4 words.	Matches fewer than 3 words; reteach with objects/pictures.
Oral language	Uses a word/phrase or sentence frame independently.	Repeats or completes a frame with prompts.	Needs modelling, pointing, or partner support.
Print / participation	Tracks text and joins echo/ch oral reading.	Joins with reminders.	Needs close support to follow the page or participate.

Teacher note: participation and English production should be assessed separately from comprehension. A beginner may understand correctly but need additional language support to express the answer.

8. Answer key for the student handout

- A. Match: 1–d (fan); 2–b (nap/short sleep); 3–c (red pot); 4–a (cot/small bed).
- B. Fill in: red; lot; hot; fan; cot; nap.
- C. Multiple choice: 1. B (Dot); 2. A (red); 3. C (eat a lot); 4. B (a fan); 5. C (nap); 6. A (a small bed).
- D. Sentence completion: “Dot is on her cot. Now she will nap.” Accept spelling approximations consistent with the learner's stage if the intended words are clear.
- E. Draw Dot’s cot: open-ended; check that the drawing shows a bed/cot. Oral response is acceptable.

9. Teacher reflection after the lesson

- Which students could identify the clue word “she” and explain that Dot is a girl?
- Which words (especially cot, fan, and nap) need another visual or movement-based review?
- Did every student respond during the comprehension check, or only the confident volunteers?
- What is the next appropriate reading step: reread the same text, practise target vocabulary, or move to a similarly levelled text?

Source notes

Lesson content is based on the user-supplied transcript of the “Dot” lesson (class rules, feelings warm-up, shared reading, vocabulary explanation, finger-choice comprehension check, sentence completion, and review game).

School context checked against the official Haidian Foreign Language Academy page for the 2026 primary Chinese-English curriculum class: https://www.bjfles.com/class/jbxxzy/ . The school page describes broad programme features; it does not publish a detailed lesson-by-lesson scope and sequence for this particular class. Accordingly, this document does not claim official approval or exact curriculum mapping.